

NEW AIR FORCE
If the "merger" of armed services, proposed by the President, is accepted by Congress, the Air Force is expected to organize along lines as different from the Army as the Navy, with different uniforms and titles of rank.

EXPANSION
The Bureau of Labor Statistics experts, after examining the problem, have concluded that her-full employment for American workers in 1950 will require considerable expansion of basic industries, including steel, electric power, oil production, lumber and mining.

athletes being carried on during the spring, we'll need something to do . . .
We just heard that Ted Horne, assistant coach at Western, was at Vanderbilt. That's the job that Coach Johnson turned down.

er, one of the officials for the season, was also a great MSTC hurdler star. He must have made a bundle of points while he coached at Western, but now he's back. Warm Coops is teaching at Brookhaven and officiating at high school basketball games. He is rated by many fans and coaches as the best official in the state. We can say that we agree, too.

So I Am Told

Not only did we see the cream of the high school basketball crop at the regional tournament, but we also saw the cream of the cheerleading crop. Better cheerleaders would be hard to find.
Let's take them up individually by schools. First there was Clark County. They had grand openings from their backers and they got the most out of them at the first two games. They did leave the floor to soon on some plays so you can't hold that against them.
Next was Olive Hill. Always provided with a fervent cheering section, their job was made doubly difficult by these fans. They had some cute yells that at times they couldn't put them out.
Morehead High we have observed all season and we think they are as good as any we've seen. They have coordination and grand entrances. They had the poorest support of any team in the tournament most of the time, however. We can't understand this. They had a good basketball team, at times.
The Cardinals, too, had better than average cheer-leaders. They were handicapped by having only a small group of leaders, but they made up in noise what they lacked in numbers. The cheer-leaders were mighty fine, we've heard.

And now we come to Breckinridge. These girls would defeat any basketball team's heart. They never make a false move. They stick in perfect union. They always know what the yell is and they know how to do it. The cheer-leaders from Breckinridge are the best we've seen. Hitchens has some swell yell leaders. They, too, were handicapped by lack of support but they had the pep. They had what it takes to pull a team through if it is at all possible.
Greene County cheer-leaders of the green and white that support any support but their cheer-leaders put out their best efforts anyway. That is the mark of good cheer-leaders. They try even though they have no support.

Last, but hardly what you'd call least, comes Mt. Sterling. They, too, were superb. Even though they're new, we think that the close game they played Clark County in the first round was due in no small part to their cheer-leaders' efforts.
Talking about basketball (and why was that we said it) we should say that Stan Stover, the American League outfielder, played basketball at Morehead College and went into organized basketball on the strength of his play here. He is one of the more consistent players in the junior circuit.

Earl Duncan, a MSTC basketball great, was an interested spectator at the regional tourney. He was one of the best ever to wear the blue and gold of the Probably one of the better regional tournaments held in the Commonwealth of Kentucky was witnessed by those who attended the 10th Regional athletic meet held in the MSTC gym last week-end. It included a major upset and a two overtime affair among other things. Clark County pulled the upset by downing Olive Hill 44-31 in the finals. They weren't supposed to do that, you know. The overtime battle was the one between Morehead and Breckinridge. Morehead won 46-40 as Lyons sank a huge field goal in the first 20 seconds of the second extra length period.

Our pick of the players who reported on the game was Puckett of Clark County. An expert dribbler, good shot, cool floor general, he was by far the outstanding performer in the tournament. Rogers of Clark County was instrumental in the Cardinals' defeat of Olive Hill. His set shot scored great. Clark County's Aid in picking outstanding players one must not forget Marvin Marshall who played 21 points through the game as Breck lost to Morehead.

Morehead's Vaughn, favored of many for regional honors, fared badly in the second quarter of their semi-final game with Clark County and before they could recover found themselves faced with an unsurmountable lead. Clark County outperformed the locals at every turn and took full advantage of apparent mental lapses by members of the Viking team.

Overhead at the tourney, a member of a just beaten team talking: "Well, there went my trip to the Kentucky-Indiana All-Star game."

We've heard several comments on the way the regional meet was handled . . . and they've all been favorable too. Seems that everybody was well pleased with the Constitution, the publicity effort, the show, on a job well done.

With spring just around the corner we can see that plenty of fishing will be going on soon. In fact we know one person who has already tried. "Red" Moore, who is practically always first in evening at MSTC tried his luck Tuesday. No report as yet.

Will there be a softball season? We heard at MSTC this season? With no intercollegiate season? We'll see.

MSTC Students Would Like To Do This Here

There is one T. C. U. professor and student who have more than a common denominator in a bombing.
 Recently, Dr. Walther Vohlaub of the university's department of speech-drama was telling of the bombing of the home town of Mainz, Germany, by a group of U. S. B-17's. The planes, of nearly munitions plant, but due to bad weather, some of the bombs hit the town, destroying the professor's house.

After class, a student, Nick Dear of Fort Worth, had a story of his own for the professor. He had led the B-17 attack that night on Mainz—(ACP)

You Can't Beat The Law—Read This

Low, the very subject for which Tabernaz Meunier studied and received his degree at Loyola University homesteaded and prevented him from becoming an attorney. According to Supreme Court law, Tom, who is 19, cannot practice law in Louisiana until he is 21 years old, even though he has already passed the examination.
 "It's true I can't go into court as an attorney yet, but think of all the experience I'll have when I'm of age to be admitted to the bar," Tom said. "I'll have two years more than the average 21-year-old graduate." While waiting to grow older, he is doing legal work for the Social Security Administration.—(ACP)

He Goes Truckin' Down The Road

Maybe the third piggy had the best of brick, but an unclassified student at the University of Oklahoma looks a lesser referee. Tommy Turle and built his house on a track and he might never catch him far away from home.

When G. E. "Skip" Landau, Stuttgart, Arkansas, decided to enroll at the university, and learned the seriousness of housing problems he had in mind, he took an enclosed army truck. After installing a heater, a refrigerator, stove and other household necessities, he fastened them to the floor and drove off to Norman.
 Since arriving at the university, he has installed shelves, built a record player, curtains, sink and dozens of other articles to make a model home. This summer he plans to travel with out ever leaving home.—(ACP)

Shaffer Attends Meeting Of Kappa Delta Pi Benjamin Main Speaker

Harold Benjamin, head of the department of education at the University of Maryland, was the main speaker at a meeting of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary education society, which was held at Atlantic City, New Jersey, earlier this month.

Attending the meeting and dinner from Morehead State Teachers College was Dr. Hugh Shaffer, head of the education department.

Mr. Benjamin's subject was "Under Their Own Command," a study of means and methods of developing the initiative of students.

Passing a resolution, declaring for economy, is one thing; cutting appropriation bills and keeping them out another.
